Coffee is one of the largest traded commodities in the world, providing livelihoods for 25 million farming families, and is crucial to the GDP in many countries. In places such as Ethiopia and Rwanda, coffee plays a critical role in the economy and revitalising coffee production and quality is vital; allowing farmers to generate income and improve their standards of living. This project aims to increase coffee production and quality by providing farmers with the necessary tools and training to improve their coffee production and quality. The project also aims to improve the coffee supply chain and ensure that farmers receive a fair price for their coffee. The project is supported by the UK Department for International Development (DFID) and the UK Foreign Office.
